

NAMBOUR DPI ADMINISTRATION BUILDING

Electrical Data & Security Services

The Department of Primary Industries new administration building, located at Nambour on Queensland's Sunshine Coast is the Queensland Government's first environmentally friendly office building.

The building features state-of-the-art climate and water management technologies that are estimated to have annual operational savings of 15-20% for energy and 50% for water compared to typical office buildings.

The building has environmental standards that are in line with the State Government's Towards Q2 'green' aspirations, with a target to cut Queensland's carbon footprint by one-third by the year 2020.

EDSS supplied all electrical contracting services and was very proud to be involved in the first building of this type in Queensland.
